29th Lakeside Junior Olympics draws 600 young participants

by Greg Eichelberger

As proud parents, teachers, relatives and friends looked on, hundreds of elementary and middle school children from all over Lakeside converged on the massive hippodrome of El Capitan High on May 10 to participate in the 29th annual Junior Olympics.

Despite early controversy that threatened to postpone or even cancel the event, things went off without a hitch.

"These games are here for the kids," said Lindo Park fifth-grade teacher Linda Colbert who also coordinates this volunteer event for the Lakeside Union School District.

She said that she respects the other opinions that this takes up too much time and it's a lot of work, but the kids love it and as long as they do, it should continue.

Colbert, who has worked at this affair for the past 22 years, also pointed out between recording kids' names and times for ribbon presentations, that the parents in the district voted overwhelmingly for these games to go forward.

She noted that more than two-thirds of them wanted these Olympics.

Concern was voiced that there were just too many things happening in May: arts festivals, concerts and other diversions leading to graduation. But most who were in attendance felt this was one thing that brought everyone together and should go on.

Resident Jerry Mosier said that his son's not in these games, but we're here because we felt it was important to cheer on his schoolmates.

Approximately 600 students took part in the variety of track and field events, including most of the regular track events which were tailored to the ages of the participants.

More children would have been present had Our Lady of Perpetual Help joined in, but this year other commitments precluded that.

As it was, the kids enjoyed the opportunity to engage in structured games normally reserved for their older counterparts, and, no matter who took red, yellow or blue ribbons, all walked away a winner.

Lindo Park principal, David Nichols, who headed a task force formed in October to study the feasibility of the Olympics, was also pleased with what he saw.

"What I've noticed is that the community, once it heard that we might not have this, showed their true colors and came out to support it." he said.

"When you see the smiles on the kids' faces, it's what makes this all worth while," he added.

Praise went out to the local Kiwanis club, which cooked the burgers and hot dogs, to El Cap Athletic Director Dick Wilkins and his varsity track team, who helped out on the events and to several track coaches from other Grossmont schools who also joined in that effort.

Praise was also given to dozens of teachers in the district who took time to assist and area celebrity, Steve Hamman, who, complete with a Ken Caminiti-like goatee, served as the master of ceremonies, among others.

Although busy preparing a list of children's names and events for Hamman, Lakeside Union School District Superintendent Dr. Jackie Spacek took time to add her kudos to everyone who made these Junior Olympics come together.

"It's a great community event," she said, then noted that when you can see that we have 600 kids and 1,200 parents and other relatives, so it turned out to be a really nice affair, and everyone seems to be having a great time."

Parkway sports center inaugurates rec roller hockey league

by Joe Naiman

The Parkway Sports Center's Recreational Roller Hockey League began May 4 as Broilers earned a 4-1 victory over But We Look Good in a game that opened recreational roller hockey in East County.

When Ron Pennock, who owns 40 percent of the La Mesa Sports Center, bought the Parkway Swim and Tennis Club, he accommodated an overload of the La Mesa facilities and the need for recreational-level indoor soccer and roller hockey.

He preserved six of the Parkway facility's 10 tennis courts, replacing four with a roller hockey and indoor soccer facility and parking.

Pennock noted that the La Mesa Sports Center and the Parkway Sports Center are oriented towards different types of play – La Mesa will host the competitive indoor soccer and roller hockey leagues, while Parkway stresses the recreational level.

The Parkway facility serves as a roller hockey rink four days per week and as an indoor soccer arena three days a week.

The Parkway recreational youth league began play April 5 with 12 teams. Six are in the 12 and under division, four in the 10 and under circuit, and two in the 8 and under league. Approximately 150 children participate on those teams.

Joe Noris, the center's roller hockey director, said he was happy with the numbers and with the distribution of the teams' players, as he estimates that three-fourths of the league's games have been decided by one or two goals.

Noris also holds the position of CEO of Roller Hockey International's San Diego Barracudas. He formerly played professional hockey with the San Diego Gulls of the Western Hockey League, and, at one time, he was a teammate of Dale Pennock, Ron's brother.

Noris liked the idea of heading up a new program at a new facility and agreed to take the position. His duties started with clinics Jan. 18 and 19, which will continue in an effort to introduce more potential players to roller hockey.

Noris remarked that it's going well with a lot of new people, both kids and adults, who have never played before, enjoying it.

He is aided by league director Karla Augustine, who had previously been the director of the San Diego Roller Hockey Conference in Santee for two years.

That conference played at a makeshift rink at Cajon Park School, but outgrew that facility and endorsed the Parkway league for its players.

Her two older children play in the youth league. She has four boys, including a 20-month-old and a 6-month-old. The family lives in Lakeside.

She plays in the adult open co-ed league. The adult teams, of which there are currently four, play on Sunday evenings, while the youth teams play on Saturday morning and early afternoon. A high school-aged league plays on Saturday afternoons.

Noris estimated that Parkway league's players are about equally divided between those from the La Mesa Sports Center, those from the San Diego Roller Hockey Conference and new players.

Because some players are on more than one team, exact figures are impossible to obtain.

Noris noted that there are about 275 roller hockey teams in San Diego County consisting of players 17 and under.

Assuming an average of 12 players on a team, he estimates that there are about 4,000 youths involved in organized roller hockey over a calendar year and an equal number of adults.

Five years ago, Noris said, there were about 50 players, mostly adults, involved in organized roller hockey, which he thought was pretty good growth.

He expressed happiness with the adult league after its first games and felt that it met his expectations with a good pace and a lot of good scoring chances.

Opening day play for adults at the new Parkway roller hockey facility in El Cajon saw a defender (right) watching the stick action of an opponent in the game between the Broilers and But We Look Good.

Historical society receives grant for security system at new home

The Lemon Grove Historical Society has been award a grant of $1,585 from Las Patronas, a La Jolla philanthropic group. The grant money will be used for installation of a security system in "The Parsonage," the society's new home.

"The grant officially kicks off the society's capital campaign for the restoration of the parsonage as our city's first-ever museum," said Dr. Amorita Treganza, Lemon Grove Historical Society president.

The grant was written by Helen Ofield, second vice president-elect of the society and will be paid to Cloud Security of Spring Valley.

The 1895 Parsonage, formerly know as the Atherton Chapel, is a two-story Victorian wood frame structure on the corner of church and Olive Streets.

Sports Beat
with Greg Eichelberger

Seems we touched more than a few nerves last week with our commentary (ie "opinion") of the El Capitan students detained for violation of curfew, vandalism and possession of alcohol and marijuana by minors. The fact that of the 13 charged, four were on the school's various baseball teams did not make it any easier for me to report.

Then the phone calls began coming into my editor and myself. "I'm disappointed that you would write something so negative." was one woman's comment. Unfortunately, she did not leave her name or number. If she had, I could have told her that my comments about the kids who did these things being "stupid" and "irresponsible" still stands. I would have also asked her why she never called when we did positive stories on El Cap students, like listing the Vaqueros of the Month, and profiling folks like Steve Vickery, Melissa Hadfield, Dick Wilkins, Dave Waastad, Brett Caradonna and the like.

Kids are getting into enough trouble (serious crimes by juveniles abound – ask the Sheriff's Department) without excusing this kind of behavior as, "They were just children." Besides, those who saw what was going on, or knew that some had beer or pot, should have mustered up enough courage to leave the scene.

One man did talk to me in person, and I believe it's fair to point out that none of the 13 were charged with driving under the influence of anything. I was wrong about that and retract my "drunk" statement. I apologize for that mischaracterization. There, I've said all I'm going to on this subject.

Now on to some local sports news. Jeff Clark from Helix High has been recruited to play baseball for the Naval Academy team at Annapolis, Md. After that, it's six years of his life devoted to the Navy. "Six years! A lot can happen in six years. There could be another war in six years!" to quote "An Officer and a Gentleman."

Seventy-one-year-old Chuck Robison, of La Mesa, won a medal at the Masters Indoor National Diving Championships in Midland, Texas. Congratulations, whippersnapper. Why in my day, we didn't have diving. We just jumped into the pool. And we loved it.

Carlton Oaks Country Club gave way to the best of the best Western Athletic Conference golfers last week as SDSU hosted the 1997 NCAA Division I Men's Western Regional Championships. Eleven teams, including number one-ranked UNLV, participated. The winners advanced to the NCAA finals in Chicago.

While that was going on, San Diego State's Tony Gwynn Field was also the place where the elite of the WAC baseball teams gathered for their Western Regional tourney.

Now that the Lakers are out of the NBA play-offs, is this not the time to root against the hated Dodgers. Methinks, "Yes." On the other hand, with the abysmal way the Padres have been playing as of late, it's hard to find anything to root for. That will all change, of course, when the CIF baseball post-season gets underway this week. Watch the East County schools rock and show the other teams what the game is all about.

If you want to spout off in this column, my number is 390-7103. Don't be like some recent callers, saying how mad you are at me, and not leave your names. I can take it. Besides, after we dialogue for awhile, you may find that I'm even more annoying than you first thought. Anyway, have a great sports week.

East County Horse Association to hold first show June 1 at Pillsbury Ranch

The East County Horseshow Organization (E.C.H.O.) will be holding its first show on June 1 at Pillsbury Ranch in Lakeside.

The ring will be open for warm-ups first thing in the morning. Classes offered include flat and over fences equitation, hunters under saddle and pleasure, walk/trot, crossrail hunters, hunter hack, 2' hunters, and 2' 3" - 2' 6" hunters.

After a course change, jumper classes will start at 2' 3" and build to 3.' The last class will be a Gambler's Choice, with a special prize for the winner.

All first place prize winners will be presented with a gift certificates from PetsMart.

Professional's Choice Sport Medicine Products will be giving awards to High Point Equitation Rider and High Point Horse. Linda's Hitching Post will also be sponsoring a high point award. There will be lots of ribbons and classes for everyone.

Pillsbury Ranch offers an excellent setting for a horse show. It has great expanses of riding areas, a wonderful track for a gallop or cool-down, picnic areas with flowers, trees and grass, and is only a minute from Highway 67.

For more information and to receive a premium list for the show, please contact Katy McGuire at Hidden Fox Farm 561-9543 or 561-6471. Tentative dates for shows are Sept. 28 and Oct. 26.

Baseball finals set for stadium

The San Diego CIF office announced recently that the 1997 baseball finals will be played in San Diego QualComm Stadium on Thursday, June 5.

Cooperation between the city of San Diego, QualComm Stadium and the San Diego Padres enabled all three division championships (I -II - III) to be played on that date beginning at 1 p.m. for Div. III, 4 p.m. for Div. II and at 7 p.m. for Div. I.

CIF approves 35-second clock for basketball

The addition of a 35-second clock in boys basketball, beginning the 1997-98 school year, was approved by the state CIF at a recent meeting.

A survey by the state CIF taken last June showed a 76 percent favorable response among the principals, athletic directors and boys basketball coaches and assistants who answered the survey.

A 30-second clock is currently in use for high school girls and collegiate women's basketball.
